

Financial Times – Comment – 07.04.22

David Howell

This is all thoroughly bad news. The world is far from united against Russia. In fact more than half the world is hovering round so-called neutrality and could not care a fig about Biden's fight for freedom. And even Europe is not united in either overall view or agreed actions. The one big hope, was, and remains, that the world can indeed be united not by ideological 20th century rhetoric but by sheer disgust and alarm against the pariah who has broken every rule of governance, east and west and regardless of regime.

Biden delays that prospect almost every time he opens his mouth..

(Meanwhile for God's sake get on with the weapons supply, like the splendid Czechs, Who cares whether they are 'defensive' or 'offensive' -a typical bureaucrat's distinction).